Munitions Plant Worker Dies

When officials of the Federal Public Housing dormitories at Wilmington returned from summoning a physician after finding him ill in his room this morning, they found Dennis J. Reed, 55, dead.

He had complained of having pains in his stomach when James Raleigh, assistant manager of the project, talked to him a short time before. Raleigh and Joseph Clark, an employee at the dormitories, went to call a physician and to bring him milk that he had requested. When they returned he was dead.

An autopsy was to be performed this afternoon by Dr. E. A. Kingston, coroner.

Reed had been employed by Sanderson and Porter since October. He lived at the dormitories when first arriving in Wilmington, but left there several months ago, making his home in town. He returned to the dormitories yesterday.

Reed, who formerly made his home with a sister, Mrs. Anna Picaman, at Litchfield, Ill., was unmarried. He was a veteran of World War I.

The body was taken to the Addleman funeral home.
